Union University offers a warm, friendly environment for the pursuit of academic excellence.

BETWEEN THE LINES

It's The College Experience

It begins in a line — the registration line. You wait to see your advisor who, instead of helping you to plan your schedule, drives you deeper into confusion. You wait in line while the computer decides if you get the classes you want at the times you want with the teachers you want. You wait in line to pay your bill and hope your checkbook doesn't go into shock. You wait in line to get your parking sticker, indestructible student I.D., and your yearbook picture taken. Finally, you wait in line to buy your books (and you pray that they still have some of the more economical used ones left by the time you get to the front of the line!) Now you have begun your college career!

It ends in a line — the graduation line. You march to the front lawn with your fellow classmates and hope you don't trip over your gown. While you adjust your cap for the twelfth time you reflect on the past few years — the tests and term papers, the late night talks with your room-mates, the endless hours in the library, the smiling faces in the hallway, the baseball and basketball games, the pranks and mischief, required chapels and five-minute class meetings . . . your mind races, and you wonder where the time went.

From registration to graduation, your college experience, whether it is enjoyable, memorable or at the least bearable, is "between the lines." — Susan Watt Angie Swisher discusses her fall schedule with Dr. Bill Bouchillon.

Adrienne Feltus discovers that you can arrange and rearrange your schedule, but ultimately the computer decides whether or not you get the classes you want.

The lines never seem to end during registration. Buying books is no exception.

Brenda Caston enjoys having her own room to study in or just to get away — one of the features that make Union unique.

Professor's doors are almost always open to students to come in and ask questions or just to chat.

UNIQUELY US

We're One Of A Kind

Union University. We're unique. Although many other small college and university campuses dot the globe, there is not another exactly like us. Perhaps they are like us in some ways, but they are not a carbon duplicate. Where is the line of difference drawn? What makes us unique?

Perhaps it's the obvious fact that we are a fully accredited academic institution tucked under one roof. With the exception of the newly added business building, all of Union's departments are housed in one single complex. From art to nursing, from biology to computers, it's all so conveniently and continuously close.

The student/faculty ratio also lends to our individuality. It's not unusual to see a professor spending quality, in-depth time with only a handful of students. Where other schools may support lectures from a televised professor to a vast lecture hall crammed with hundreds of students, Union offers a uniquely intimate classroom approach.

Many other features set us apart such as a chapel that has its doors open not only for planned assemblies but also personal moments of solitude. Located symbolically at the front of the school, the chapel sets us apart not only as an institution dedicated to academic quality, but also Christian ideals and commitments.

Another feature is perhaps a dilemma for the ladies but is certainly a gentleman's paradise. At Union the gals outnumber the guys about 3 to 1. Frenzy can sometimes erupt when it's the gals turn to try to find the perfect partner for that date party.

Union also boasts of unique resident facilities. Dorm suites include individual rooms, living area, and kitchen for apartment-style living.

We continue to grow. We are steadily changing as an academic institution but these steadfast qualities — those things that set us apart — continue to remind us that we will always be uniquely us. — Laurin Smith

Chris Rice, surrounded by three adoring female friends, relaxes in the hallway. With a female to male ratio of three to one, this is not an unusual scene on Union's campus.

The chapel, a prominent structure on Union's campus is yet another feature that sets it apart from other universities.

The student/teacher ratio allows students and teachers the opportunity to develop a more personal relationship.

Volleyball is a fun yet challenging way to keep in shape.

Racquetball classes are among the first classes to close during registration.

Playing pool offers a relaxing interlude to a busy schedule.

Lifting weights is an excellent way to tone muscles and increase strength.

TRIM LINES

An Exercise Craze

"Watch your weight," "Eat more fiber," "Swim more laps." These are the captions of the 1980's fitness craze and everyone has been infected.

Aerobics classes are full, the swimming pool always seems to boast eager lappers, and the basketball court often carries the echoes of bouncing balls. Even the racketball courts seem to be constantly booked.

The classes that teach sports for credit are almost always closed when you try to register, because more and more people are wanting to learn how to play hard and get in shape. Classes are often full within the first 30 minutes of pre-registration's opening.

At Union students have many opportunities to burn excess energy, tone muscle groups, or just plain-old-relax! Pool tables, ping-pong, stationary bikes and weights. They're all there for our use and are more often than not in use.

Union also boasts special excursions away from school, — skiing in Colorado to scuba diving in the Keys. But, whether it's running laps or treading water, there's something there for everyone who has caught this widely-spreading and contagious fitness fever. — Laurin Smith

Someone is always eager to play a game of basketball.

Cathy Conley finds the stationary bikes beneficial.

Jamie Mandrell works in the men's commons to supplement his college expenses.

Missy Alford and Angie Williams know that at $1.00 a load, doing laundry is not cheap.

Textbooks, greeting cards, notebook paper, candy, sweatshirts . . . a trip to the college bookstore can sometimes prove expensive.

Paying bills is one of the less exciting moments of college life.

The Familiar Cry Of College Students

"Where does all my money go?" How many times have you said that? $2.00 for laundry, $9.87 for groceries, $5.00 for gas, $3.50 for a movie, and $2.17 for a Big Mac and coke. Before you know it, you've spent almost $25. With 30 weeks in the school year, this can get pretty expensive.

Add that to tuition, about $32,000; books, $300; and room and board, $1,650, and getting an education can cost you more than $5,000 a year.

Aid in the form of scholarship, loans, and grants can help alleviate some of the financial burden. Union offers several different types of scholarships which are awarded on the bases of: academic record in high school, performance by testing, special ability, and financial needs.

Many students seek employment to help with expenses. On-campus jobs include the book store, activity center, cafeteria, and teacher assistants. Others look off-campus for jobs that pay a little more than $2.85 an hour. A few industrious students work on their own by tutoring, babysitting, or offering typing services.

Some students are fortunate to have parents or other relatives in a position to finance their education. Whether you work to pay your own way, receive financial aid or assistance from parents, or a combination of the above, almost every student, at one time or the other, finds himself in a position in which his expenditures exceed his income, and he is forced to utter the words, "Send Money!" — Susan Watt

IT'S A LIVING

Part-time Jobs Can Be Educating

No matter how well endowed a student may be upon arrival at Union, time soon reveals a major need, MONEY!

Most college students at sometime in their academic career end up working part time. They work in restaurants, department stores, and gas stations. Some work on campus, some work off. Some work from early morning until classes begin, while others are donning their work clothes after classes are over.

Some students seek employment in their field of study. Many pastoral students work as music or youth directors on the weekend while health science students may work in hospitals or clinics. Education majors work in child care centers. Management and marketing majors work in small businesses. Still others prefer a total change of pace, choosing a job not even closely related to their field. Music majors stuff our mail boxes while communication students take our orders and accept our tips at Pizza Hut. Working for cash or scholarship is not unusual, but it is a challenge.

It can often be tricky balancing class time, social life and study hours.

All are necessary. All require a considerable amount of energy. But, whether or not you're working to pay your way through school or just for the cash to afford that late night snack, employment throughout the college years works hand in hand with academia to build a more flexible and responsible person more capable of handling the challenges of a career after Union. — Laurin Smith

Dong Skiles, Director of Career Planning and Placement, is responsible for helping a large number of students locate jobs.

Dawn Hankla works the late shift at WDXI radio station in Jackson.

David Garmany works as a phlebotomist at Jackson General Hospital.

On-campus jobs also provide added income. Cindy Sander works in the campus post office.

Lisa Allen earns extra money in the university library.

Test scores like this can certainly add to final frustrations.

Susan Crecelius prefers to study for exams in the convenience of her room.

FINAL FRUSTRATIONS

The End Is In Sight

Finals week . . . it's the most dreaded four days of the semester. It's the week that sweaters, oxford shirts, pants and skirts are replaced by sweats, T-shirts, and shorts. It's the week the girls disregard hot rollers and make-up and the guys, razors. Aside from appearances, it's the week you get by with only three hours of sleep per night. You live in a state of anxiety and cram information into your head until it feels like it may explode.

For many students, it's the week that can make or break their final grade. If you've been to class every day and have taken good notes, your chances for an acceptable grade (your parent's definition) are greatly improved. If, however, you have frequently slept through class, accumulated an inch of dust on your textbooks, and considered a "savage tan" more important than that history exam (twice), you are wise to be concerned!

The key to study is organization. You must have all the notes (even if you have to spend $13.60 at the copier); and it wouldn't hurt to read your textbook. Many students choose to study in groups to compare notes and quiz each other.

But studying involves more than books and notes. You must have a proper diet — chips, popcorn, candy bars, twinkies, and lots of caffeine. To allow time for studying many students find it necessary to skip meals. However, my experience has shown that it is virtually impossible to acquire knowledge on an empty stomach. (But then again, I find it impossible to do anything on an empty stomach!)

Another must of studying is a study break. These help to make finals week somewhat less dreaded.

The Student Activities Center offers opportunities to break away from the books for awhile. You may take in a movie or play a game or two of basketball. Some students just want a few minutes outside of the supposedly quiet environment of the library to talk about anything except participles, derivatives, or absolute numbers.

Finals week . . . it's the four days that can seem like a semester in itself. Unless, of course, you count the days you spend waiting for your grades!

Blasingame Academic Complex Opens For Business

After months of planning, building, preparing, and more planning, the Blasingame Academic Complex opened for business during the Spring semester. Efforts have been underway since December 1985 to establish a School of Business Administration at Union. At that time Vice-President Barefoot identified to then president, Dr. Craig, the need for this new facility. It was approved; a building location was determined; and tentative floor plans were drawn during the Spring of 1986. Soon thereafter, efforts were activated to secure the estimated $5,000,000 needed to underwrite the cost of the project.

Groundbreaking ceremonies took place on October 13, 1987, and construction began the following Spring. Delays including a shortage of construction personnel during the summer months and water leakage (something we are familiar with at Union!) put the project only a semester behind schedule.

The complex houses all of the business faculty offices, four large classrooms, a microcomputer lab, two seminar rooms, a reception area as well as a unique facility that will accommodate the business community of Jackson and surrounding areas. In April 1988, Union announced that 5,000 square feet of the complex would be designated as the Center for Creative Communications. The Center includes a television studio and control room, a mobile television unit, a radio lab and production room, and a fully-equipped darkroom with a separate room for film processing. Also included are the student publication offices, a small study area, and an archive of new tapes that will be used by students and local stations. — Laurin Smith and Susan Watt

CURRENT EVENTS

Last year was an important year!
Without even knowing it, each of us made history ...

HEADLINES

... The people we voted for, the actions we supported, the purchases we made, the music we listened to, the television shows we watched, and the movies we saw are now a part of personal and collective history. We can't repeat these experiences; they are gone forever.

As each year passes we are drawn to evaluate that year. We think how we affected its events and how they affected us.

Someday our children will look back on the year and only know what the headlines disclose. Will these headlines reveal what you would wish them to?

Did you get involved and make things happen? Are you aware of mistakes made or victories gained?

Are there things you would change?

Now look into the future. How do you want the headlines to read? How will you make it happen?

These present moments are our teachers. They influence our todays and make our tomorrows impressionable. Learn from these moments now, for they may well be tomorrow's headlines. — Nancy Riddick

When they were not firing muskets loaded with rusty nails into each other's faces, they were engaged in a competitive warmth-out — Michael Dukakis trying furiously to grin, with meager results; Bush's grin wandering, with random abundance, all over his face and off into the air. Given his wrinkles (and his plight), Lloyd Bentsen's grin was hard to distinguish from a wince. Off to the side, Dan Quayle was giving high school students his version of the Stephen Sondheim lyric "Lovely is the one thing I can do."

Ironically, the campaign began with rival moral visions, offered by two candidates who created the greatest surprise of the election year. Pat Robertson and Jesse Jackson both deplored the loss of family values, the irresponsible sexuality of the young — what Jackson called "babies making babies." They said that drugs were hollowing out the country's moral center. They called for greater discipline in the schools. Both wanted to get tough on crime.

Robertson's effort seemed to flame out earlier. His campaign staggered from one kookiness to the next until he finally became a laughingstock. The Jackson story is almost the reverse of Robertson's. He went further, gained more votes, commanded more attention and remained an important factor in the race right up to the convention. But his themes were not incorporated into the Democratic campaign after the convention. Robertson's cadres would be a quiet but key element, while Dukakis treated Jackson as an embarrassment.

The failing of Dukakis' candidacy has more to do with the candidate himself than with poor strategy, inept aides, stylized debates, TV commercials, or even George Bush. Dukakis is a decent, rational, hardworking man, dedicated to public service and the common good. But he never understood the office he sought. The presidency requires a leader who can forge an emotional bond with the people and act as a vehicle for their aspirations. Dukakis is no dreamer. His visions run too high — speed trains from New York to Boston, not spaceships to distant planets.

But now the resume is complete. The elusive last line can be typed in: George Herbert Walker Bush, 41st President of the United States. For nearly a quarter-century in public life, Bush has upheld the old-line patrician virtues of duty, service, loyalty, and self-effacement. These qualities served him well as he clambered up the ladder of achievement. But on a cloudy Tuesday night in November, uplifted by the votes of more than 46 million Americans, Bush was elevated onto a higher plane. As President, as that man at the big desk in the Oval office, Bush will now have to articulate to what ends he plans to harness his ambition. — Time, November 21, 1988.

AMERICA RETURNS TO SPACE

Right up to the moment of Discovery's launch, the space agency displayed caution — and in the view of some critics, excessive cautions — in preparing to resume shuttle flights. Time and again during the past year, as problems cropped up during tests of new and redesigned shuttle equipment, officials pushed back Discovery's launch date, from February to August, finally settling on September 29.

On the first day of its scheduled four-day mission, the five-man Discovery crew achieved one of its major goals — sending TDRS toward its designated orbit — and seemed well on its way toward the other: a successful test flight of the newly refurbished shuttle. Discovery's leap into space seemed at last to have given the nation, as well as NASA, a long-needed catharsis, purging it of the lingering horror of the Challenger disaster, restoring the battered pride of Americans in their technological prowess and providing new impetus to a languishing space program. — Time, October 10, 1988.

RAGING FIRES SPREAD . . .

Forest fires spread throughout the western part of the country in the summer of 1988, destroying millions of acres of national parkland. The most heavily damaged was Yellowstone National Park.

The earthquake that shattered much of the Soviet Republic of Armenia last week brought horrified world images, via unprecedented Soviet TV coverage, of trapped victims in twisted piles of smoking rubble and of as many as 400,000 bewildered people left homeless, many of them wandering in shock through buildings crumpled like paper. As the hours went by, the death toll climbed: 10,000, then 30,000, then, on Saturday, the first official estimate of 40,000 to 45,000. But the numbers continued to rise. The only sign of hope amid this swath of misery was the outpouring of aid to the Soviet Union that began flooding in from around the world. The shock wave, which registered 6.9 on the Richter scale, spread far beyond the battered towns and villages of Armenia.

The outside world responded almost as quickly as Gorbachev did to the devastation. Medical supplies, rescue equipment and trained search teams from France, West Germany, Britain, Switzerland, Bulgaria and Poland were flown into the Soviet Union, and more aid was offered by countries from Latin America to the Far East. This was the first time that large-scale U.S. assistance had been given to the Soviet Union since the end of World War II. On Sunday tragedy struck again: A Soviet military transport plane carrying soldiers to help rescue victims crashed at the airport in Leninakan, killing 79 people.

The earthquake came in a minute-long tremor, followed four minutes later by a sharp aftershock, measuring 5.8 on the Richter scale. The timing could not have been worse: at midmorning, public buildings were full of people. This tragedy thus gives Gorbachev an opportunity to present himself as a caring leader who seeks to heal rather than divide. Gorbachev's other major domestic problem will be coping with the cost of the earthquake, likely to rise to the tens of billions of rubles. — Time, December 19, 1988

There was no Mayday call, no radio message at all — just a grim silence as air-traffic controllers watched the green electronic blip registering Pan Am Flight 103 break up and scatter. Bound for New York from London, the 747 jumbo jet suffered a horrifying explosion at 31,000 feet, and for three minutes pieces of the plane and the bodies of its passengers cartwheeled to the Scottish countryside below. All 258 aboard and at least 17 Scottish villagers were killed. It could have been an accident, but the early circumstantial evidence strongly favored a terrorist's bomb. The shock waves of grief spread to waiting relatives at New York's Kennedy Airport, to the campus of Syracuse University, where 35 exchange students would never return, to a dozen states and to countries all across Europe. Everywhere, it seemed, the joy of Christmas sadly dimmed. — Newsweek, January 2, 1989

The summer of 1988 was hit with the worst drought in many years. Throughout the midwest, farmers watched helplessly as their crops went dry.

The World Series belonged to the Los Angeles Dodgers. The Dodgers captured their sixth World Series title in October with a 5-2 victory over the Oakland A's in the fifth game of the series.

It was one of the big marriages of the year. Heavyweight boxer Mike Tyson married actress Robin Givens. But the stormy marriage of the 22 year-old rich boxer and the 23 year-old beautiful actress lasted less than a year. She filed for divorce. But after being accused of marrying "Iron Mike" for his money, Ms. Givens said she wouldn't take a dime.

It became an international effort of good will. Russian and American rescuers cut through the ice in Alaska to save two California gray whales. The whales were trapped in the ice for more than three weeks. News media from around the world converged on the tiny village of Barrow, Alaska, to cover the successful rescue.

Vice President George Bush, after serving for eight years in the Ronald Reagan administration, got the expected nod at the Republican National Convention in New Orleans in the summer of 1988. His choice for running mate was unexpected — Sen. Dan Quayle of Indiana. The public opinion polls showed the inexperienced 41 year-old senator was not a popular choice.

The Democrats went to Atlanta in the summer of 1988, and decided on Michael Dukakis, the governor of Massachusetts, to be its candidate for President of the United States. He decided to pick Lloyd Bentsen, a senator from Texas, as his running mate.

On the night of the national holiday honoring Martin Luther King Jr. and as Miami was preparing to play host to the Super Bowl, a Colombian-born policeman shot and killed a black motorcyclist speeding through the streets of Overtown, a ghetto just northwest of downtown. A passenger riding on the rear of the motorcycle was fatally injured in the resulting crash. The incident triggered two nights of shootings that spread from Overtown to the nearby black ghetto Liberty City. By the time the rioting subsided, one looter had been killed, 22 people had been wounded, and property damage was estimated at $1 million; police arrested 385 mostly for looting. — Time, January 30, 1989

Canadian Ben Johnson, left, looks over at arch-rival Carl Lewis at the finish of the 100-meter race in the 1988 Summer Olympics at Seoul, South Korea. Johnson won the gold medal but was later disqualified after traces of an anabolic steroid were found in his system.

Gretchen Elizabeth Carlson erupted in tears as her name was announced as Miss America 1989. The 22 year-old Miss Minnesota, who planned to be a Harvard-trained lawyer, became the first classical violinist to win the Miss America crown.

President Ronald Reagan and Soviet Leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev worked for several years to bring the two countries together. After a treaty was signed to eliminate certain nuclear weapons, 1988 was the year the efforts of these two leaders went into effect.

The stars of the 1988 Summer Olympics, clockwise from top: diver Greg Louganis won two gold medals; track and field star Carl Lewis won two gold (including one after Canadian Ben Johnson was disqualified) and a silver; Florence Griffith Joyner won three gold and a silver; and swimmer Matt Biondi celebrated with five gold, a silver and a bronze.

OLYMPICS

Amid tears and grief, thousands of people who had died of AIDS were memorialized in October in ceremonies centered on a huge quilt that was made from friends and family members of the victims. Each of the panels measured three feet by six feet and all 50 states and a dozen foreign countries were represented in the 375,000 square foot quilt.

NEIGHBORING COUNTRIES TOUCHED BY GILBERT

Hurricane Gilbert uprooted not only trees but lives. It chewed across the length of Jamaica, leaving 500,000 people homeless, and virtually destroying the island's economy. It slammed into Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula, shattering the glassy facades of tourist hotels and destroying the homes of 30,000 residents. By the time Gilbert touched the trembling but well-prepared Gulf coast, its epic force had swamped beaches and highways and forced more than 100,000 people in Texas, Louisiana, and Mississippi to flee in anticipation of its virulence.

Belying its mild-sounding name, Gilbert became unique as a force — the most powerful storm to hit the western hemisphere in this century. Its counterclockwise wind speed peaked at an estimated 200 m.p.h. at 10,000 ft. and 175 m.p.h. at ground level; its 26.13-in. barometric pressure was the lowest ever recorded. Gilbert was blamed for at least 100 deaths and billions of dollars in damage in the Caribbean and Mexico. An additional 200 people were feared drowned after a rain-swollen river jumped its banks and overturned four buses Saturday in Monterrey, Mexico. But highly accurate tracking and early warnings prevented more widespread loss of life. The storm ranked well below the toll of recent killer hurricanes like David (1,100 deaths in 1979) and Flora (7,200 deaths in 1963)

Born as a low-pressure trough off the coast of Africa, fed by a combination of heat, moisture and atmospheric instability, Gilbert grew in size and force as it moved westward across the Atlantic. On Saturday, Sept. 10, about 225 miles southeast of the Dominican Republic, it was officially designated a hurricane when its winds exceeded the required 74 m.p.h.

The entire Gulf Coast of Texas had been put on alert as Gilbert headed toward landfall. From Brownsville to Biloxi, Miss., people sought shelter from the storm, in many places clogging highways and emptying supermarket shelves. The U.S. got a pass from Gilbert, but poorer, less fortunate neighbors took a hit they could scarcely afford. — Time, September 26, 1988

SEOUL OF THE SUMMER OLYMPICS '88

The 1988 Summer Olympics in Seoul, South Korea opened with a dramatic and dazzling ceremony. A colorful, three-hour spectacle mixing ancient Korean rituals with space-age technology kicked off 16 days of athletic competition.

Surely the bears and wolves and snow geese would not be bothered by a few oil rigs. But that assumption has been shattered, perhaps irreparably, by the 10 million gal. of oil that have poured from the Exxon Valdez since it went off course and ran aground in Prince William Sound in late March. By last week the thick, tarry crude had spread into a slick that covered 1,600 sq. mi. of water, fouling 800 miles of shoreline in one of the world's richest wildlife areas. In the wake of the largest oil spill in U.S. history, Alaskans are in shock. Even as cleanup crews struggled to contain the damage, the incident was igniting a debate on the future of Alaska, intensifying a longtime battle between developers and preservationists. In Washington EPA Administrator William Reilly called for a re-evaluation of oil exploration proposals pending for the state. And in Alaska itself, a tradition of favoring development is suddenly in doubt. Much of the outrage continued to focus on Exxon's reliance on Joseph Hazelwood, the Exxon Valdez skipper, who was apparently drunk while on duty. — Time, April 17, 1989

Pleasantly handsome, piercingly intelligent, he was a master manipulator, a silver-tongued charmer who lured women to their deaths, confounded police pursuers and clogged the court system for nearly a decade. Last week, when Ted Bundy was finally strapped into Florida's electric chair and jolted with 2,000 volts of electricity, he paid with his life for the 1978 kidnapping and murder of Kimberly Leach, a twelve-year-old Lake City girl. But if his last-minute confessions prove to be true, the former law student may have killed as many as 50 young women in Utah, Washington, Idaho, Colorado and Florida from 1973 to 1978, making Bundy one of the nation's most grotesquely prolific serial killers. The morning of execution, some 200 bloodthirsty revelers gathered outside the penitentiary in Starke, Fla., for a ghoulish celebration. In a society increasingly fascinated with violent crime the Ted Bundy story captured the public imagination. Five books and a television mini-series were produced about the boy-next-door killer. — Time, February 6, 1989

WRENCH IN GAS TAX

A move to channel more road construction money to big cities snagged Gov. Ned McWherter's 3-cent per gallon gasoline tax hike in a Senate committee. McWherter, who had originally set a March 1 goal for increases of 3 cents on gasoline and 1 cent on diesel, said he did not plan to twist the arms of committee members.

The house has approved McWherter's requested fuel tax increases plus another penny on gasoline for local governments and an additional cent on diesel. Together the bills would raise the gasoline tax to twenty-one cents and the diesel levy to eighteen cents. — Jackson Sun, March 22, 1989.

Jackson welcomed presidential candidate George Bush and running mate Dan Quayle to the Old Country Store.

MERGER PLANS MOVE

Jackson and Madison County leaders set a May 25 vote on a school consolidation plan and a 1 1/4-cent sales tax increase to fund it.

The city council voted 5-3, the county commission voted 19-5, and the county school board voted unanimously in favor of putting the merger plan to voters. The proposal would join the city and county school systems under control of an elected school board and appointed superintendent. — Jackson Sun, March 20, 1989.

THE LOOK

Sears in Old Hickory Mall unveiled a new look after undergoing a 42-hour facelift, in which the store marked down merchandise and changed sale floor signs. At the Jackson store, that meant changing prices on about 20,000 lines of merchandise. Nationally, 1.5 billion items were reported to have been repriced — some as much as 35 percent lower — during the transformation. — Jackson Sun, March 1, 1989.

ROADS LEAD TO PROGRESS

Governor Ned McWherter maintained his administration has kept the promises he made to improve Tennessee's education, roads, and economic development. And he pledged to continue doing so. "We're going to see the most massive road-building ever seen in Tennessee.

We've got to have roads that give access to communities."

Evidence of his road program can be seen all over West Tennessee in road-widening projects, bypass and interchange projects, he said. And there's more to come, he stressed. — Jackson Sun, March 13, 1989.

HATCHIE BRIDGE COLLAPSE KILLS 3

At least three people were killed when a bridge over the Hatchie River collapsed authorities said.

An almost 100-foot-long section on the northbound side of the bridge on U.S. 51 caved in about 8:10 p.m., authorities said state troopers, firefighters, and rescue squads were on the scene. A helicopter arrived about 11 p.m. after landing on the north side of the highway to strap on extra lights before lifting off again to help in the search. — Jackson Sun, April 2, 1989.

AREA GROCERS CALL SITUATION TRAGIC

Area grocers pulled grapes and other fruit off their shelves but were unsure what would be done with the produce or who would pay for their ounce of precaution. Store managers at Liberty in Hamilton Hills Shopping Center and Hays Super Warehouse Foods on Old Hickory Boulevard removed grapes after hearing the news that a shipment of grapes imported from Chile was poisoned with cyanide. No one is sure how long the ban will last. — Jackson Sun, March 14, 1989.

4.7 QUAKE SHAKES JACKSON

The 11:45 a.m. quake measured 4.7 on the Richter scale, said Ron Collins, regional director of Tennessee Emergency Management Agency. Its epicenter was ten and a half miles southwest of Cur-rettersville, Jackson Police Department reported getting calls from people near Skyline Drive and North Side High School, who said they felt a tremor. — Jackson Sun, April 27, 1989.

UNSOLVED MYSTERY

Marlena Childress was last seen in April 1987, but LaWade Strickland hopes people all across the nation will see his missing granddaughter on NBC's "Unsolved Mysteries." Whether NBC decides to produce the show depends on how much information police will give the network from their investigation files, Strickland said. — Jackson Sun, April 26, 1989.

At the age of 24, singer, songwriter George Michael has done quite well — international acclaim, 36 million records sold worldwide, and an unbroken string of success. And his first solo LP — "Faith" — was a huge success.

It's been four years since Michael Jackson's "Thriller" was released, a landmark work that grew into the most successful album of all time with more than 40 million sold worldwide. His latest album, "Bad," was released in August.

After playing the role of a tough cop in the television hit "Miami Vice," Don Johnson is shown in a scene from his movie, "Sweet Hearts Dance." He chose a movie in which he wields nothing more lethal than a fly rod.

Rock star Tracey Chapman belts out a song at Wembley Stadium in London. It was the opening of the global rock tour for human rights by Amnesty International. She was among the singers who started the six-week tour.

Believe it or not, this man is not a normal sight in New York City. Australian actor Paul Hogan hoists himself up a pole to get a better view of Manhattan's busy streets in a scene from his hit movie "Crocodile Dundee II."

Pop singer Whitney Houston has been performing to sell-out crowds for several years. And there is no end in sight!

One of the musical groups who consistently tops the charts with hit after hit is Van Halen. Once the badest of the bad, Van Halen and his band have decidedly cooled their personal styles while managing to keep their music hot. Clothesline

Fashions this year went from head to toe. The necks were covered up with turtlenecks and the ankles went bare for all the world to see. Much went on in between also. Both prints and plaids were popular this year. Shirts were tie-dyed and painted with the student's own artwork; blue jeans were slashed and patched.

The guys came up with a new way of cuffing their pants called pegging which gives a tapered effect. (Many girls also came to appreciate this discovery!) Their overall look was collegiate, but also conservative. During the cooler months, many of our Union men sported really great, geometric designed sweaters. (Not only did the girls appreciate these, they borrowed them too!)

Dresses and skirts became everyday apparel for Union women. Dresses were more comfortable and casual. Both T-shirt dresses and jumpers had a large following. Skirt lengths were left up to the individual. On any day you could see anything from mini skirts to dresses that brushed the ankles. A surprise for the year, however, was the popularity of the leather skirt. It was no longer worn just for those reckless weekends; it could be paired with many things and proved to be a valuable asset to many wardrobes.

Once again accessories had a great amount of importance for the well-dressed. Lace collars added an extra touch of femininity to any outfit. Scarves could be worn any number of ways — around the neck, around the waist, draped over the shoulder or wherever wanted. The key was individuality. Bows and ribbons took on a new importance also. They could be pinned on shirts, skirts, or shoes, besides being in the hair. Hair accessories carried their own weight though and having just the right shade could make or break the outfit.

The warmer days brought various types of bicycle shorts. They could either be worn alone or layered under another pair of shorts for the less daring. Then came rolled up blue jean shorts that could be bought or home-made with an old pair of jeans and a pair of scissors. Most of the guys chose to just cut off an old pair of khakis or jogging pants instead. Finally, walking shorts made their inevitable reappearance. Guys and girls alike went for these longer, dressier shorts which appear to be replacing last year's

JAMS.

Last but not least are shoes. Comfort seemed to be a key factor here. White canvas tennies and Dexters were the most popular styles. Quite a few people even went for the high top Dexters and other similar styles. Girls mostly wore flats, except for those extra special evenings with heels.

Union's year in fashion was casual as well as conservative from head to toe. Those modeling this year's styles are Lisa Harrington, Brian Howard, Elizabeth Peek, Tenje Houston, Alan Joiner, Christy Arrington, Mendy Camp, Jason Hartig, Heather Ray, Susan Crece-lius, Trent Presley, Catherine Peek, Amy Scott, Angie Scott, Shands Orman, and Felicia Greene. — Nancy Riddick

THE OPENING LINE

CAMPUS LIFE

No college is an island to itself.
Union University cannot survive alone.
Therefore, Union plans activities which serve to open its doors to the public.

INTRODUCTION

The most popular public event is Homecoming. Alumni from across the United States return to Union to see old faces and meet some new. Another crowd-drawer is All-Sing. Each organization exhibits a superior performance and provides entertainment for everyone who attends.

Speaking of entertainment, one cannot overlook Union's many plays and musical productions. Past performances have achieved such success that

"Union" is synonymous with "talent."

Union takes talent one step farther and adds beauty, personality, and poise to obtain the Miss Union pageant. A preliminary to Miss Tennessee, the pageant attracts many.

These events not only open Union to public. They open us to ourselves. They challenge, entertain, fascinate, and present us with another, very necessary, aspect of college life. — Nancy Riddick

Many of Union's administrators including Dr. and Mrs. Barefoot and Dr. Brewer enjoy attending campus events.

The Miss Union pageant, a preliminary to the Miss Tennessee pageant, draws a large audience of students, faculty and staff as well as off-campus guests.

The W.D. Powell Theatre offers two major productions a year to the Jackson and Union community.

Mrs. Louise Lynch director of Alumni Affairs gives some last minute instructions.

Peer Counselors make the transition for the incoming freshman easier by playing wacky games.

All-Sing is a favorite and well-attended event at Union.

The beginning of the fall semester is marked by the annual welcome back party. Andrea Bowen is glad to see old friends.

The Contemporary Christian group "Truth" arrived on May 12 for a concert in the chapel. This is the group's fourth appearance at Union.

Russell Newport, Major Ian Thomas, Fredrick Sampson, and John Meadows were the special guests for the annual 1989 Spring Bible Conference.

A concert by "New Song" was the highlight of Campus Day 1988. The group performed favorites off of their current tape, Say Yes!

CAMPUS EVENTS

Even though Union University's campus is relatively small, it is always full of activity and life. In addition to the "Big" events such as All-Sing, Homecoming, and the Miss Union pageant, campus life at Union offers concerts, special guest speakers, Campus Day, a Talent Show, the Wellness Seminars, movies, theme parties, board game tournaments, and a lot more. The calendar is always overflowing with events sponsored by Student Government Association, Student Activities Council, and Baptist Student Union; not to mention other organizations or departments of the school. From casting rods in the swimming pool to attending a concert, one doesn't have to look far to find something to do in his free time.

Campus Day drew more than 500 high school students to the campus this fall to view life at Union.

Kappa Delta won first place in the group competition of the Student Activities Council's annual Talent Show.

THEATRE HAS SOMETHING FOR YOU

In the fall of 1989 the W.D. Powell Theatre will obtain new chairs and a new curtain. It will look fresh and clean, but it will be empty. People are what fill the theatre and make it come alive.

The purpose of the theatre is to fulfill a part of the liberal arts tradition. It is a seedbed for training in communication skills. Involvement in theatre teaches one to speak clearly, be expressive, communicate ideas, and appreciate other's point of view. The theatre survives by involvement, and Union's theatre needs actors, crew members, and an audience.

In addition to the outstanding performances of The Fantasticks, Two From Foote, and Jack and the Beanstalk, Union's theatre welcomed two special guests this year. In the fall, Norman Deitz performed "Old Ymir's Clay Pot" during chapel. This is an enlightening story with a Christian perspective.

In the Spring, Curt Cloninger was sponsored by the Lyceum. He performed "Witnesses" which is an emotion packed Christian drama. Both performances were greatly appreciated and left an impression on all who attended.

Theatre director David Burke said that his goal for the approaching year is to increase public relations. He wants the student body to realize that the theatre is for everyone. It is not necessary for one to be a drama major to be a good actor. — Nancy Riddick

The one-man theatre Curt Cloninger not only entertains but presents the message of God as well.

Lighting is as important to a production as the set or script. Cindy Sanders and Steve Williams work the lights for The Fantasticks.

THE FANTASTICKS

The Fantasticks is a romantic musical comedy, a memory play, and a parable. It was designed to be nostalgic and to challenge one's thinking. The Union University players did all this in their rendition of the award-winning, internationally acclaimed musical by Tom Jones and Harvey Schmidt.

The plot was simple. The two characters Luisa and Matt fall in love despite the wall between their houses. They think their fathers will not approve, but actually their fathers are scheming to bring the two together. Things run smoothly until the lovers become restless. Matt leaves to discover the real world, and Luisa falls in love with El Gallo. She, too, suffers through the rejection of El Gallo.

However, the message of The Fantasticks goes much deeper. It is the story of dying to self. El Gallo represents God. He allowed the others to make their own mistakes, and he hurt when they hurt, but he was always in control. Luisa and Matt had to suffer and put away their selfish desires before they could really love each other. The fathers portrayed humans who want to help but fail to realize that only God can ultimately direct people's lives.

The Fantasticks was an excellent play and was well accepted. It was performed six times before Thanksgiving before capacity crowds, and the Homecoming show was sold out.

The cast of The Fantasticks included: Kenny Hartley, Jennifer Nance, Jeff Craig, James Walker, Jerry Parker, [unclear] kins, Matt [unclear] Watson, and [unclear] Bertrand. — Nancy Riddick

TWO FROM FOOTE — A SUCCESS

The Union University Drama Department production Two from Foote provided a different taste in student entertainment during its six presentations. A variety of Union students were cast in two one-act plays by Horton Foote: A Young Lady of Property and Blind Date. A Young Lady of Property, set in rural Texas in the mid-1920s, is the story of a flippant teenage girl, Wilma Thompson, whose ambitions have drifted from being a Hollywood star to getting married at a young age and raising children. The plot centers around the girl's adamant plans to move into the house left to her by her deceased mother. The conflict is created by her father's decision to sell the house and remarry.

Shondra Hayes was successful in her efforts to exemplify the typical emotional instability of a teenage girl, and Benji Wood was convincing in his portrayal of Wilma's father, Lester Thompson. The housekeeper, Minna Boyd, played superbly by Union graduate Carrie Knox, provided a bit of humor.

The humorous story line of Blind Date is built around what else but a blind date between a rather bratty young girl, Sarah Nancy, played by Chris Harwood, and her handsome young caller, Felix Robertson, played by Scott Reynolds.

Delores Henry, played by Tisha Brewer, is the matchmaking aunt determined to teach her niece how to be "gracious" to her gentlemen callers. Miss Brewer stole the show with her overzealous attempt to force the young tomboy into kissing the boys instead of kicking them.

Jeff Kulas portrayed the matchmaker's hungry husband whose main purpose in the play is to coerce his wife, amidst her giving Sarah Nancy courting lessons, into preparing his supper.

The play, also set in Harrison, Texas, in the 1920s, was thoroughly entertaining and well-suited for a student audience.

All in all, Two from Foote was entertaining, allowing a very talented group of students to express themselves through a cast of varied characters and allowing audiences to experience a wide range of emotions.

JACK AND THE BEANSTALK

When the Bumblebee Barnstormers, a touring group of actors from Bumble Bee, Arizona, did not show up for the annual Spring Children's Theatre, the Union University Players were forced to perform their rendition of Jack and the Beanstalk with the assistance of the audience and some makeshift props. They managed to pull it off! Adults and children alike were entertained and amused by this somewhat different version of the classic tale.

The cast of Jack and the Beanstalk included: Benji Woods, Kirby Atkins, Matt Plunk, Dean Wallace, LeAnn Babb, Chris Harwood, Paula Austin, and Shondra Hayes.

WHO'S WHO AND WHY

Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges is a program for honoring outstanding Juniors and Seniors as campus leaders in scholastics and community achievements. The program is approximately fifty years old and is participated in by more than fourteen hundred institutions of higher learning in the United States.

The Who's Who selection criteria includes scholarship ability, participation and leadership in academic and extracurricular activities, citizenship and service to the school and potential for future achievement.

At Union University Who's Who students are elected by the vote of the faculty. In addition to the general criteria established by Who's Who, Union University also uses the following minimum criteria to judge students for nomination: (1) The grade point average of all colleges must be at least 3.0 on the 4.0 scale. (2) The student must be expected to complete his degree requirements between September and August of the following year. (3) The last twenty-four semester hours of the student's studies, including the current spring semester, must have been at Union University.

MR. AND MISS UNION UNIVERSITY

Mr. Brian Howard And Miss Janna Norton

Each year the student body votes on numerous things. Perhaps one of the most personal elections is that of selecting Mr. and Miss Union. Everything the average student seeks to achieve in this sometimes hazy cloud of academia is demonstrated in these two carefully chosen individuals.

This year's selections certainly meet those qualifications. Janna Norton and Brian Howard have demonstrated on several occasions across their college years the epitome of what we at Union search for when selecting Mr. and Miss Union.

Brian Howard is Mr. Union. He is a member of the 1989 graduating class with a major in Physical Education and a double minor in church recreation and secondary education. His campus involvements include active membership in SAE and the Intermural Program. He is a Chi Omega wise guy, an officer in the Student Foundation and has participated in the Centrifuge program sponsored by the Baptist Sunday School Board. His love for sports influences not only his college life (he played for the Bulldogs his Freshman year), but spills over into his private life as well. His spare time often includes sports. Brian also enjoys working with youth. In fact, upon graduation he will be attending Southwestern Seminary in Ft. Worth, Texas, where he will prepare to work as a youth minister.

Janna Norton is a senior majoring in Elementary Education. She has involved herself in numerous campus activities including the Student Teachers Education Association and her senior class government, for both of which she serves as the vice-president. She is also the vice-president for Chi Omega as well as an SAE little sister. Every student needs an outlet and for Janna, this includes bike riding, walking and cross stitching. Upon graduation this Spring, she hopes to secure a teaching position in Jackson and to continue her education toward a Master's Degree in Education.

ALL-SING 1988

The lights dim and a hush ripples across the audience. One by one ensembles move through their presentations; note by note the music fills the hall. The evening carries a spark of magic as the audience relives golden oldies, show-tunes as well as favorite gospel scores.

The occasion is All-Sing — a musical tradition almost as institutional as Union itself. Every Autumn, this thematic evening boasts the best of the college's vocalists, singing and stepping through practiced paces to entertain both a campus population and the Jackson community at large.

Although All-Sing itself begins and ends in only a few short hours, preparation for this show gets underway in the early part of the semester. Various representative campus groups hold auditions to select a special blend of voices that will hopefully win the trophy for which the ensembles compete (a first, second and third place winner is chosen by a panel of guest judges). Once the groups have been secured, each one assembles a short program consisting of two numbers. Traditionally, the selections begin with a popular show-time or other old favorites with which the audience is likely to be familiar and closes with a reflective gospel piece.

The Time Is Now!

Drew Gay, Union graduate, emceed the event.

Rick Osborne, Russell Rowland, Bill Pauley, and Tim Spencer entertained the audience.

Phi Mu Alpha performed their national hymn, "Hail Sinfonia."

This year's participants were Sigma Alpha Epsilon singing "A Fifties' Medley" and "Arise, My Love." Zeta Tau Alpha won second place with "Mr. Sandman" and "Morning Like This," while Kappa Delta filled the stage with sounds of "Tennessee" and "Sweet, Sweet Spirit." Lambda Chi Alpha captured the first place title with "Marian the Librarian" and "The Reason We Sing." Chi Omega won third place with "We Go Together" and "For the Beauty of the Earth." The music fraternities Phi Mu Alpha and Sigma Alpha Iota also presented a short display including "I Want a Girl" and "Create in Me."

Once all of the participating groups had presented their 5-7 minute programs, they gathered on the stage for a grand finale. As is customary, the title of this final song reflects that theme: "The Time is Now." All-Sing. It's tradition in song.

Kappa Delta performed "Tennessee."

SAE sang a medley of Fifties' tunes.

Anticipation And Jubilation

Chi Omega went back to the Fifties singing "We Go Together."

Lambda Chi performed "Marian the Librarian."

Zeta selected "Morning Like This" for their sacred number.

HOMECOMING — TAKE A LOOK AT US NOW

One of the highlights during the Homecoming festivities was the naming of the Homecoming Queen, Susan Ward. Susan, chosen by the student body, is an outgoing Junior majoring in Elementary Education and will grace Union as its reigning Homecoming Queen for this next year. She is making the most out of her Union years by becoming actively involved in Young Life, Chi-Omega and SAE Little Sisters. Although she is a native Jacksonian, she is looking forward to teaching possibilities as a specialist in Kindergarten education in either the Memphis or Nashville areas.

The Homecoming Court includes Rhonda Russell, junior; Melinda Johns, senior; Debbie Schacle, junior; and Tisha Brewer, junior.

Rhonda Russell was escorted by Mr. Lance Davis.

Melinda Johns was escorted by Mr. Benji Wood.

Susan Ward was escorted by Mr. Blane DeLoach.

We're #1

Always a big campus event, Homecoming Week attracts multitudes from on campus and off. Both students and alumni gather to witness this Fall spectacular that celebrates the binding of today's Union spirit with that of generations past.

This year the Homecoming activities were condensed into three action-packed days (December 1-3). The features ranged from a Fashion show to the traditional ballgames. "All-Sing", a musical extravaganza, and a special presentation of this Fall's theatrical production of "The Fantastics" were especially reserved for the Homecoming week. All looked forward to the climatic day of December 3. Reunions from previously graduated classes were held throughout the day, as well as luncheons, receptions and banquets.

Two basketball games highlighted the events this year. The Lady Bulldogs tipped off the evening with a special game against the Union Basketball Alumni, resulting in a victory for the Lady Bulldogs. On the mens' side, the taste of victory had been attainable but not quite reached. Playing against Spirit Express, they pushed through with stamina and sportsmanship, not giving in until the final score. Spirits were high as all of our Bulldogs played well, confirming that it was a perfect set of games for a perfect homecoming.

Miss Union University 1989

The preparation begins long before we see the results. The hours of training and anticipation are sometimes many and trying. But for those ladies who have made the commitment to participate in the Miss Union University pageant, the paces can be exhilarating.

The contestants come from all areas of Union's campus. Each organization carefully chooses a participant they feel will represent them in a well-rounded manner and will hopefully come to represent Union as a whole.

The Pageant itself is a multi-faceted evening for both contestants and audience. The ladies move through several categories for the judges before a winner is chosen. These include evening gown, swimsuit and talent. The program ends with the announcing of categorical winners (talent, congeniality, etc.) then climaxes with the naming of an overall winner. This individual is considered to be well-rounded in all of the divisions and thus a good representative for Union University. The new Miss Union, receiving some scholarship as well as a trophy, will then move on to compete in the Annual Miss Tennessee Pageant.

All contestants work hard for this moment. All could easily be chosen as the new Miss Union, but one will rise above to be a final representative as Miss Union University. The evening builds memories for the audience, for the contestants, for all who are intricately involved. Through the experience all learn, all grow, making everyone in the competition a winner.

This year's 14 contestants were as follows: Christy Arington, representing the freshman class; Tisha Brewer, representing the Rutledge History Club; Miriam Brooks, representing the Black Christian Fellowship;

ONE MOMENT IN TIME

The exciting moment finally arrived. On March 11, 1989, before a full-house, fourteen contestants eagerly awaited the crowning of Miss Union University 1989.

Events leading to the anticipated announcement included: the parade of contestants; entertainment by Mistress of Ceremonies Kellye Cash, Miss America 1987; swimsuit competition; introduction of judges and other guests; talent competition; evening gown competition; and the final walk of Miss Union University 1988, Caryn Dement.

The exciting evening climaxed with the announcement of Dana Cunningham as the winner of the Beverly Williams Lewis Talent Award and Shireen Schacle as Miss Congeniality.

Tisha Brewer, a 20 year old from Collinwood, Tennessee, was named fourth runner-up and received a $100 scholarship. Lisa Cozart, a 20 year old from Memphis, Tennessee, was named third runner-up and received a $150 scholarship. Jennifer Smith, a 21 year old from Guys, Tennessee, was named second runner-up and received a $150 scholarship. Mendy

Camp, a 20 year old from Southaven, Mississippi, was named first runner-up and received a $175 scholarship. Finally, Dana Cunningham, an 18 year old from Hornebeak, Tennessee, was crowned Miss Union University 1989. Her awards included a $600 scholarship and a $250 wardrobe from Parks Belk.

AND THE WINNER IS . . .

Fourth Runner-up, Tisha Brewer; Second Runner-up, Jennifer Smith; Miss Union University, Dana Cunningham; First Runner-up, Mendy Camp; Third Runner-up, Lisa Cozart.

Who would have imagined that the young girl who stood on the hearth of the fireplace at her grandmother's house and sang "Delta Dawn" would be crowned Miss Union University! Dana Cunningham, a freshman from Hornebeak, Tennessee, never dreamed that her extraordinary talent would take her so far. The amiable, softspoken blonde is enthusiastic about the role she will have as Miss Union. "Already, it's given me a chance to meet people I would not normally meet," she shares.

After losing her voice the week before the big night, Dana was worried she wouldn't be able to reach some of the notes in her song during the talent competition. She not only hit them, but she managed to walk away with the Beverly Williams Lewis Talent Award in addition to the Miss Union crown. "I was overwhelmed and thankful. Everyone was so nice," Dana remarks.

Dana, who didn't decide to attend Union until three days before registration, feels Union and winning the pageant have been answers to prayer. "I have no doubt that God led me to Union . . . through winning the pageant and scholarship. He has supplied exactly the amount of money I needed to come here. God just keeps opening doors and showing me He's going to supply."

As Miss Union, Dana hopes to represent Union well in the Miss Tennessee competition. In preparation for this pageant, she plans to get in better physical shape, work with new ideas for hairstyles and make-up, attend several seminars about pageant performance and participate in mock interviews.

Majoring in music Dana's dream is to become a contemporary gospel artist. She is a member of the Singers, Chorus, Baptist Student Union, and the Baptist ensemble "Majesty" and is also a Sigma Alpha Epsilon little sister.

Dana Cunningham was awarded the Beverly Williams Lewis Talent award for her performance of "Upon This Rock."

Shireen Schaele was voted Miss Congeniality by the other contestants.

OUTSIDE THE LINES

G REEKS

Many options are available to students at Union who want to be involved in more than studying. For some, it's work, family, friends, or clubs. For some, studying is more than enough, but for many a fraternity or sorority is what takes them outside the lines.

THE GREEK GENERATION

Union has three sororities — Zeta Tau Alpha, Chi Omega, and the newly-founded Kappa Delta. Each sorority offers sisterhood, a cafeteria table for mealtime fellowship, lots of activities, and much, much more. Shireen Schacle, president of Kappa Delta says, "Our unique structure allows each sister to contribute the gifts that God has given her toward a cause in a spirit full of love, encouragement, and confidence."

While some students fear that being in a fraternity would put them in a mold, Ron Kwasigroh, president of Alpha Tau Omega, says, "The most sacred aspect of my organization, ATO, is the genuineness that is allowed to develop among ourselves combined with a mutual respect for individuality." In addition to Alpha Tau Omega, Union's other fraternities, Lambda Chi Alpha and Sigma Alpha Epsilon, offer exciting opportunities for brotherhood and involvement. Each fraternity and sorority has something different to offer, just as each member does.

To pledge or not to pledge, that is the question. Each individual must decide whether or not he will choose to join a fraternity or sorority to take him outside the lines. — Nancy Riddick

KAPPA DELTA

The history of Kappa Delta is a story of friendship, of creative ideas, of loyal service, and of lofty ideals. Kappa Delta Sorority was founded in 1897, in Farmville, Virginia. It has since grown to a sisterhood of over 120,000 members in 113 chapters and 456 alumnae associations. Kappa Delta has the distinction of having the largest number of alumnae associations of any group in the National Panhellenic Conference.

The Zeta Beta Chapter of Kappa Delta was colonized on September 11, 1988, at Union University. Their first year at Union has been one filled with excitement. They have enjoyed participating in many activities on campus. On Campus Day, the ladies of Kappa Delta received the Greek Display Award. Awards for creativity and the most money raised were given to Kappa Delta at the Union Halloween Carnival, where money was raised for various charities.

The Zeta Beta Chapter has also enjoyed many other activities during their first semester at Union. These activities included a Costume Party, Homecoming, All-Sing, and a Christmas Banquet. The new year brought more exciting times for Kappa Delta. Spring Rush, the Miss Union University Pageant, and a Spring Date Party are just a few of the many activities in which Kappa Delta took part.

The ladies of Kappa Delta are very excited about being a part of the Greek system at Union University. They are striving each day to work with other groups on campus to become a vital and strengthening part of campus life.

ZETA TAU ALPHA

"To seek the noblest" is the open motto of Zeta Tau Alpha, and it is clear that on Union's campus they do just that. The Beta Omega chapter of ZTA began the fall semester of 1988 with a bang by achieving quota in Formal Rush. They added 36 new and unique pledges to their chapter. As the year

continued, Beta Omega kept up their momentum by winning Best Pyramid on Campus Day. Homecoming was a big weekend for ZTA as they did extremely well in all competitions by winning Best Pyramid and Most Spirit. In addition, they placed second in the annual production of All-Sing.

The ladies of Zeta Tau Alpha are very diverse and unique, yet they come together as one in their bond of sisterhood. The unconditional love they share for each other will live on even as they go their separate ways.

The sisters of Beta Omega live the dream of their founders by steadfastly working toward a goal of a purer and nobler womanhood. They rest assured that the bond they share will live on in their hearts forever; "... remembering always that the foundation precept of Zeta Tau Alpha was love, the greatest of all things."

CHI OMEGA

On April 5, 1895, at the University of Arkansas, Chi Omega became the first fraternity for women to be founded below the Mason-Dixon Line. The southern girls who founded Chi Omega chose the open motto to be "Hellenic Culture and Christian Ideals," high standards which Chi O's encourage each other to maintain. The Upsilon chapter, chartered at Union University in 1924, is the fourth oldest chapter of Chi Omega.

The Upsilon Chapter of Chi Omega has had an exciting year. Rush Week escalated until Bid Night, when Chi Omega chose thirty-six new girls to join their sorority. These pledges were exposed to the fun and frolic of Greek life as they met new pledges of other sororities and fraternities on campus at the annual "Fratty Friends Party" held at the Chi Omega Lodge in September.

A "Crush Party," a

"Nerd Pageant," and "Chi-Omega Shoot-Out" were among the theme parties held during the fall semester to offer Chi-O's and their dates a chance for fun and fellowship. Chi Omegas dominated Campus Day by winning Greek Olympics and the Spirit award with their red and yellow enthusiasm. Also Chi Omega, forty-one year winner of the Scholarship Trophy, hosted a scholarship reception in honor of the faculty and staff of Union.

The spring semester began with the excitement of initiation week. February found the Chi-O's and their dates decked out in a jungle gear for a safari party at "Chi Omega Republic." The semester ended on a fabulous note with the annual Spring Formal Banquet held at the new Wilson World Hotel.

SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON

Tennessee Eta of Sigma Alpha Epsilon, founded 133 years ago, can justly lay claim to a heritage rich in tradition, ideals, and that nebulous term "brotherhood," unexplainable in its fullest sense, yet in every way real within the hearts of the men who proudly wear her name. This right was not easily won. From the very beginning her men had to overcome tragedy — the tragedy of the death of a founding father, the tragedy of a chapter which lay stunned in the ashes of a Civil War, the tragedy of disappointment in as a way of life. Out of this tragedy there arose, like the Phoenix, that fire in the breast of brothers which cannot be reduced to ashes — a fire which surpasses time and criticism, a fire which has brought Sigma Alpha Epsilon to the enviable position it holds in the year 1989. Of this we are rightly proud.

This pride must now more than ever be fostered. Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Tennessee Eta, and indeed, the entire Greek system, faces a tremendous challenge, the challenge of a changing nation, a changing world, a new kind of education, and a changing social environment. Tennessee Eta pledges to meet this challenge. They shall meet it with their most vital weapon, the love of a Brother. They realize their responsibility, yet they have "no fears for the future."

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA

As Union's newest fraternity, Lambda Chi Alpha has brought forth new ideas which have greatly nurtured its success on Union's campus. It has also nurtured a great brotherhood, achieved not only through social activities but through the blending of individual personalities and service to the community and campus.

Lambda Chi Alpha serves a very key role on campus. Many leadership positions are held by Lambda Chi men. Student Government Association president has been a Lambda Chi for the past two years.

Lambda Chi hosts the largest collegiate blood drive in West Tennessee outside the Memphis area. Lambda Chi also sponsors an annual faculty reception, sorority reception, community food drive for needy families, and a special olympics for underprivileged children.

Lambda Chi also participates in campus events such as campus-wide All-Sing in which they won first place with their performance of "The Reason We Sing" and "Marian."

Lambda Chi Alpha's colors are purple, green, and gold. Their flower is the white rose, and their mascot the mallard duck. The fraternity carries an open motto "Naught in that Labor" which is why the fraternity strives to always better themselves and to succeed in all that it does.

Lambda Chi Alpha was founded in 1909 at Boston University and is the nation's third largest fraternity in number of members.

ALPHA TAU OMEGA

Alpha Tau Omega was founded on September 11, 1865, at Virginia Military Institute in Lexington, Virginia. The Beta Tau Chapter of ATO was founded at Union University on February 28, 1894.

ATO was the first fraternity founded after the American Civil War. Before the war, most fraternities were based upon the promotion of the arts, gentlemanly conduct, or even opposition to another fraternity. ATO's purpose was to bring men of the north and south together again in a brotherhood on college campuses around the war-torn nation.

ATO sought a higher calling by stressing the recognition of true merit wherever found; even in a "yankee". This was an unpopular motive during this time period. Still, ATO's founder was an Episcopal priest and would allow no less.

The Beta Tau Chapter of ATO may not always exemplify its Christian founding, but Beta Tau strives to promote the elimination of prejudices toward men based upon race, national origin, regional heritage, or even financial status. It is evident that ATO has a rich and prideful heritage and its members at Union University are extremely proud of their brotherhood.

GETTIN' OUT OF LINE

ORGANIZATIONS

When you colored in a coloring book as a child your goal was to stay inside the lines. As you matured, hopefully your imagination and creativity took you outside the lines to develop your individuality.

GETTING INVOLVED

In the college experience you can simply go to class, soak in the professor's words, and spew them out on an exam, or you can make your college years more meaningful. Joining an organization is one way for Union students to get out of line. Union has about fifty organizations that you can join. They range from BSU to SAC to Honorary fraternities to SGA to STEA. For every area of interest, there is an organization. Union has so many organizations and opportunities that no one should be excluded.

Not only can these organizations help you; you can help them. God has given each of us a talent. Your talent may be organization, leadership, friendliness, willingness to work or any number of things. Whatever your talent, there is an organization for you. So go ahead and get out of line! — Nancy Riddick

The Student Activities Council is an organization that offers a wide variety of extracurricular activities for students at Union University. While SAC offers numerous activities and presents an image of fun and good times, the organization does state two main purposes. First of all, the Council wishes to bring together a representative group of Union students to assist in administering an activities program at Union University. SAC feels this goal can be achieved by providing a balanced and meaningful program of recreational activities that occur in a Christian atmosphere and which create group interest, enthusiasm, and increasing participation. The second goal of the Council is to provide service and support to various campus organizations and the administration.

Through the continual hard work and excitement of the group members, the Student Activities Council has established itself as a highly beneficial organization on Union's campus.

LEST WE FORGET

Each year is filled with memories which would be lost forever if not for the tireless efforts of the Lest We Forget staff. The yearbook offers a permanent record of the moments and memories that made the year. It captures the names, faces, and events for which we remember our time at Union. Composed of writers, editors, photographers, lay-out designers, and darkroom technicians, the staff works together to create a product that they, as well as the entire Union family, can be proud of.

THE LINE OF DEFENSE

S PORTS

Some people might think that a small Baptist university couldn't hold its own in the sports world, but sports is Union's line of defense . . .

UNION AND ATHLETICS

... A Continuing Tradition

From golf to basketball, we have some of the best players in the nation. They show other schools what makes Union unique and why we excel. The coaches, players, and fans pull together to support each other. Whether it is a pat on the back for good luck or hundreds of voices shouting their support, Union athletics has a feeling of unity and brotherly love. Our support has been rewarded too.

All of our teams played well this year and represented Union well. Union's athletic director, Dr. David Blackstock said, "After outstanding seasons in both men and women's basketball, our spring sports have picked up where they left off and are experiencing good seasons." A good season is not only a season of victories though. A good season is one in which each individual player and the team as a whole improve.

Union's sports not only include basketball, baseball, golf and tennis, but also cheerleaders and intramurals. Union's cheerleaders work hard to support the basketball teams. They devote much time and energy to getting the fans involved in the games.

Intramurals give every student a chance to get involved in sports. The organizations sponsor participants in each intramural event. Some of the events are basketball, football, softball, volleyball, hoop golf, cross country, frisbee golf, swimming, goofy bowling, the turkey trot, tennis, and wallyball.

As you can see, Union is not lacking in activities or participation. Therefore we can consider sports our "line of defense." — Nancy Riddick

LADIES STRIDE TO THE TOP

... HITTING OPPONENTS HARD ON THEIR WAY UP

The results were outstanding as usual, 28-6, 13-3 (2nd), District 24, Tri-District IX Champs, and NAIA National Tourney participant. Nothing will change that, but one wonders what the outcome would have been if freshmen Ressia Jackson and Sonya Wilkins, and senior Shelly Jones could have played throughout the entire season. This is only speculation, and the team deserves much accolade for the performance in 1988-89. The team produced some great numbers: 40% field goal defense, 24 forced turnovers a game, 14 steals a game, 86.7 points a game, and a 13.7 point margin of victory.

The players who produced those numbers are an outstanding group of young ladies. Freshman phenom Ressia Jackson was on her way to one of the finest seasons ever at Union when she tore up her knee in the sixth game. Up to that point, she had averaged 20.7 points per game, 4.8 rebounds, 4.3 assists, and 3.5 steals. The team averaged a staggering 98 points while allowing only 71 during her stay. Ressia's value cannot be underestimated. Shea Piercey (senior, Jackson) took up the slack and had a sterling season, winning TCAC and District 24 Player of the Year awards. She set five records including most games, career (123), most three-pointers season (71), career (132), and best percentage (44.3), as well as highest career FT percentage (81.6). She finished the year with 16.6 points, 4.1 rebounds, 4.4 assists, 43.6 three point percentage, and 80.5 FT percentage, and concluded her career with over 1500 points. Junior Catherine Peek (Memphis) showed exemplary play in the low post position. She made All-District 24 and set a career FG percentage mark of 61.6 with a year to go. For the year she led the Lady Bulldogs in FG % (59.3) and added 14 points and 7.9 rebounds a contest. Sophomore Kim Roberts (Christian County, KY) finished with an outstanding campaign at forward. She led the ladies in FT % (81.8) and made 52.8% of her field goals, while scoring 12.8 points a game. Rachel Arnold, a junior from Lexington, TN, will be remembered as one of the finest all-around players to ever play at Union. She set a school record with 155 steals, led the team in rebounding (8.1), assists (5.1) and scored 12.7 points a game. Kim Welch, a sophomore from Hardin County, did anything the team needed. She finished with 60 three-pointers, 8 points per game, 2.3 assists, and 1.4 steals. Andrea Bowens (junior, Trenton) should be commended for her extremely hard work and dedication in the past. It paid off with 7.9 points per game, 4.9 rebounds, and 1.5 steals a game. Christa Green (senior, Humboldt) concluded a fine career as a long-range bomber with 27 three-pointers and 4.6 points a game. She also impressed with 17 blocks (2nd team). Lorrie "Big Lo" Edmundson, a senior from Poplar Bluff, Missouri, added to the Union brigade in her final season with 3.8 points per game, 3.5 rebounds, and a team-leading 23 blocks. Elizabeth

The high points of the season include winning the TCAC Championship, District 24 Championship, Tri-District IX Title and the NAIA National Tournament. The trophy case will have to be expanded to make room for all the Lady Bulldog awards. — Robert Thompson

THE MAN BEHIND THE WOMEN

At the helm of this talented group, of course, is one of the nation's finest coaches at any level — Dr. David Blackstock. In eight seasons he has produced a phenomenal 203-43 record (82.5%). He has won many honors for his coaching and has guided his teams to numerous championships. The coach believes in the team concept and a very potent defense, along with mental toughness.

UNION

BULLDOGS FIGHT TO THE FINISH

... MEN'S TEAM PERSEVERES THROUGH ROLLER COASTER SEASON

The 1988-89 season for the Union University Bulldogs could be likened to a season-long roller coaster ride — extreme highs and lows all year long. The lows left bitter tastes in the players' and coaches' mouths — four losses to arch rival and NAIA #1 ranked David Lipscomb, two by an aggregate total of fourteen points, and another defeat marred by a fight, two setbacks to national tournament participant Belmont, and a season-ending three-game losing streak.

However, the highs overcompensated for these lows — a win over playoff squad Bethel, two triumphs versus crosstown nemesis Lambuth, two blowouts of Freed-Hardeman, and the exciting brand of play displayed by the Bulldogs which included twelve games of scoring 100 or more points and an average of 89.5 points per game. Everything together, good and bad, led to an 18-16 overall mark (9-7 in TCAC) for Coach Bob Ward and the first playoff appearance in three years.

Coach Ward's disciplinary style and hard work ethic transformed a 12-19 team into a playoff participant. His players exemplified that "hard-work" attitude on the floor, and many contributed strong seasons ... It begins with 6'6 All-TCAC forward Robert Isom (Three Rivers C.C., Missouri). He combined a feathery touch with fine leaping ability, and it showed on the court as "Ice Man" led the 'Dogs in scoring (18.0), rebounding (8.5), free throws made (110) and attempted (146), while converting 56% of his field goals. Union City's own Marshall "Law Man" Brown (6'5) had a superlative sophomore season as he led the Bulldogs in scoring and rebounding twelve times each while averaging 17.1 points, 6.4 rebounds, 58.6% FG, 82.1% FT, and a team-leading 1.4 steals. And he has two years left! The three-point line was made to order for the 6'3 Jackson native Rick Rudesill. His outside touch led to three Union ~~winners~~ — most three-pointers in a season (94), career (220), and best career percentage (.414). He finished '88-89 with 41% three pointers, 14.5 points a game, and 4.3 assists a game. Paul Barrow (6'3), (continued) from Todd County, Kentucky, performed admirably for Union, leading the squad in FT percentage (89.4) and adding 9.6 points a game and 44 three-pointers. Senior Branson "Back Master" Harris, from Marietta, Georgia, developed into one of the best lay reserves in the conference. He led the Bulldogs in field-goal accuracy (59.1) and averaged 16 points a game in the second half of the season in route to an overall average of 7.4. Junior James Fields (Crockett County) was the other key bench contributor. The 6'3 forward/guard showed deceptive quickness on his way to 5.9 points, 5.9 rebounds, and 3.2 assists a contest. Aquinas Junior College product Ken Norcutt (6'3) directed the troops with a distinctive flair in '88-89. His cool head led to assists by the "bushel," five a game to be exact. He led the Bulldogs in assists sixteen times while tallying 5.7

points. 6'9 Keith Thomas from Pan American in Texas provided front court punch (5 points, 3.4 rebounds) and intimidation (team-leading 29 blocks). Freshman Warren Peek (6'6 — Memphis) showed that hustle and aggressive play pay off with 2.3 points and 2.1 rebounds a game in limited play. The team's "character" Stan Norris (5'10 Senior — Paducah, KY) kept blazing away from long-range (2.0 points per game) and was not bad from the foul line either (79.2%) in his final college season. 6'0 Chris "Action" Jackson (Freshman — Murray, KY) directed the floor game for part of the season and impressed many with his good passing and court awareness (2.4 assists).

These were the main characters in Union's 1988-89 production. Much progress was made and more will be made as the 'Dogs move into the '90's. — Robert Thompson

KEEPING SPIRITS HIGH

... CHEERLEADERS GET THE CROWDS INTO THE GAME

Imagine sitting in a basketball game with complete silence except for an occasional blow of the referee's whistle and the resounding echo of the basketball as it is dribbled down the court. Periodically, you hear the coach's commands to the players and the squeak of rubber soles on the gym floor. What is missing you ask yourself.

The team is the most important aspect of a basketball game, but enthusiasm and team spirit are also essential elements to a good game. The cheerleaders act as a catalyst to spark the team and fan's enthusiasm. They lead the crowd in chants and perform cheers to let the teams know that they have our support.

Being a cheerleader requires time and effort. They spend countless hours during the summer and early fall months practicing past cheers and learning new ones. They also choreograph innovative routines set to music for performances during half-times and at special events. They attend every home game and often follow the teams on the road. In the spring, they are responsible for teaching cheerleader hopefuls a short routine and cheers for try-outs. Many of our cheerleaders also act as judges for the try-outs of local high schools.

Though they often go unrecognized, the cheerleaders play an important part in sports. Like the teams, they practice hard and always give it their best!

Cheerleading requires many hours of practice.

BULLDOGS BREAK EVEN

... AND END SEASON 27-26

As the Union Bulldog baseball team progressed through the early portion of the season, one obvious fact called attention to itself. The 'Dawgs had very little good fortune in the late innings. At least seven games had been decided in the sixth or seventh innings or had been a one-run loss.

Union created its greatest offensive output of the young season against Belmont as it tallied 17 hits in a 15-10 triumph. Luis Ortiz had a mammoth day, knocking in six runs on a homer and two doubles. Scott Harris plated five teammates (HR), and Carson McIlwain added three RBIs (two HRs). The squad split a double-header with UT-M with the scores of 2-1 and 2-1. Rick Echols lost the first game as both teams got only five hits each. Les Campbell went the distance on a five-hitter, and Steven Gobbell knocked in both runs in the win.

SEMO (Division II) seemed to take out some frustration on the Bulldogs in 9-5 and 13-2 victories. Scott Pilkington was the lone bright spot in either game as he got three hits (HR) in the initial game.

Union participated in the National Christian College Tourney in Cocoa, Florida, in the middle of March and came away with four victories in eight games. The Bulldogs came up on the short end of games with Huntingdon, Illinois (4-5, winning run scored in bottom of seventh), Oklahoma Baptist (2-9, 7th ranked in NAIA), Winona State, Minnesota (2-4), and Illinois Benedictine (1-5). Union defeated Mount Vernon Nazarene 6-4 as Rick Echols picked up another victory. Messiah, Pennsylvania, was taken down 13-3 as Scott Harris garnered three hits and David Bachman earned the win. Union scored a win over conference foe Belmont of Nashville 5-4 as Ed Gaynor picked the win in a relief role. Bethel, Minnesota, was defeated by Steve Decker (5-2) as Pilkington and Gray slapped out two hits apiece.

Back home, Rick Echols pitched the game of the year thus far for the Bulldogs as he twirled a one-hit shutout in a 12-0 whitewash of Lakeland College. Reserve Kevin Thomas contributed two doubles in the win. In the second contest Union won 11-2 behind Les Campbell as five players had two hits each. Union lost its only two conference games to Cumberland 10-3 and 6-4. McIlwain and Bachman clouted homers in the second game. Division II North Alabama (8th ranked) also swept a doubleheader from the 'Dawgs by the scores of 6-3 and 7-5. UNA scored five runs in the seventh inning to capture the opener and tallied two in the bottom of the sixth to gain the victory in the nightcap.

Superb pitching proved to be the difference in a doubleheader sweep of Lambuth. The staff held the Eagle bats silent in a 2-1 win as David Bachman ripped a two-run game-winning homer. Echols pitched his second shutout of the season in the second game (5-0). He spaced five hits and Scott Pilkington threw in three hits, including a home run. Union capitalized on two tenth inning errors to defeat David Lipscomb and its All-American pitcher Keith Hurston 4-2. Luis Ortiz had earlier knotted the score in the eighth with a home run.

The Bulldogs came away from the NAIA District 24 tournament with a 3-2 record. Things were looking good for Union as the team defeated Cumberland on the Friday of the tournament. Stephen Gobbell's grand slam was the big hit in the 8-5 victory. Just about everything possible went Union's way against Cumberland, particularly in the error department. The Bulldogs made four errors, but Cumberland was able to capitalize on the mishaps only once, scoring two runs in the seventh when Union already led 7-2.

Yet, barely 24 hours later, Union was overthrown by the Trevecca-Nazarene team 6-4 and 5-4 in the double elimination tournament. Batting against Union pitching ace Ricky Echols, Trevecca scored three runs in the first inning and knocked Echols out of the game in the third with two more. Union scratched back to cut the lead to 5-3 in the sixth. Freshman Luis Ortiz tied Union's single-season home run record at 14 by hitting a towering, two-run homer that at the time appeared to give the Bulldogs a momentum boost. Union scored again in the eighth on a homer by Stephen Gobbell to make it 5-4, but Trevecca's freshman starter Dan Moon hung on to blank the Bulldogs in the ninth and pitch a complete game.

In the second game, the Trojans again got off to a quick start, grabbing a 2-0 lead in the first as Union starter Bachman suffered through control problems with three walks. Bachman led off the first with a home run for Union, and Gobbell followed with a double. However, the big inning never got started as Gobbell got caught in a rundown and the next three batters hit into outs.

Trevecca took advantage of a double-error on one play by Union to score again in the second and lead 3-1. The Bulldogs made it 3-2 in their half of the second when Chris Duncan reached on an error and scored on Greg Orr's RBI single. Union tied the score 3-3 in the sixth when Ortiz walked and scored on Ryan Gray's RBI single. Trevecca went ahead 5-3 in the seventh on a two-run homer by Tim Green. Carson McIlwain hit a solo home run in the eighth to make it 5-4, but that was all the Bulldogs could manage against Trevecca reliever Scott Mayle. Union finished the season 27-26. — Robert Thompson

WOMEN'S TENNIS: ALL THE RIGHT MOVES

... Gals Rank Nationally At 20 And Go To The Big Leagues

The term "Lady Bulldogs" has become synonymous with winning recently, and not just in basketball. Coach Sandra Williams' Union tennis team finished its regular season at 19-2, with the only blemishes coming at the hands of powerful Freed-Hardeman. Union, which was second in the TCAC with a 16-2 mark, has taken its shots at NCAA schools, dropping Division I Arkansas State, Division II UT-Martin, and Division III Rhodes while registering 9-0 shutouts on each occasion.

Union travelled to Nashville's Centennial Park for the District 24 Tournament on April 20 and 21 where they took second place. Top-seeded Lady Bulldog Jessica Navarro was the District 24 Champ, and #2 Joy Kelley also placed first.

Jessica Navarro, ranked 29 nationally, is 19-2 in individual play and has teamed with #3 seed Stacie Whaley for a 19-2 mark. Joy Kelly is 20-1 in her singles matches. Whaley, #4 Karen Navarro, and #5 Jennifer Duke each own 19-2 records in singles competition, and #6 Theresa Barnett stands at 18-3. Seventh-seeded Kelly Mattheus is 7-1. The #2 doubles team, composed of Karen Navarro and Joy Kelly, is 20-1, and the #3 Duke/Barnett combo is 16-4. Barnett and Mattheus also teamed up to cruise past Bethel 6-2, 6-0.

Because of their rank nationally at 20, the team received an at large bid to the National Tennis Tournament in Kansas City, Missouri.

MEN'S TENNIS

The Union University Mens' Tennis Team finished the 1989 season with a record of 11-10. The regular season schedule, which was packed in mid-April due to several rain-forced make-up dates, was highlighted by a week-end trip to Washington, DC, and Gary Bailey's easy defeat of previously unbeaten Emmitt Bane of King College during an eastward swing. Union faced Cumberland, Belmont, and Trevecca before heading to Nashville on April 26 and 27 for the District 24 Tournament. They placed sixth out of the fourteen schools represented in the tournament. Gary Johnson reached the semifinals at #6 singles and the Johnson/Whitnell duo reached the semifinals at #1 doubles.

At the end of the season, top-seeded Robert Johnson held the best team record, 14-9, and teamed up with #2 Bart Whitnell to post a 17-7 doubles mark. — Eric Ma-

UNION LINKSTERS BUILD REPUTATION

AS ONE OF THE FINEST SQUADS IN REGION.

The Union linksters were at it again, building their reputation as one of the finest golf squads in this part of the country. Delta State was the site of the team's initial tournament of the season. Union had some difficulty, finishing fifth out of seven entrants, but five of the other six clubs were NCAA competitors.

Memphis and the Woodstock Country Club provided more pleasant memories than Delta State. Union earned a second place finish overall by shooting 303 and 311 in the two-day tournament. Tom Miller (78-75) and Steve Simpson (80-75) garnered spots on the all-tournament team.

The team travelled to the Nashville Golf and Athletic Club early in April and came out on top with a cumulative score of 314, outscoring Belmont and Bethel each by more than 20 strokes. Steve Simpson carded a slick 77 and Tom Miller posted a 78. Ragland Jones and Shea Bromley followed with 79 and 80, respectively.

The Tennessee Intercollegiate Championship was held at Sewanee, and the Bulldogs excelled. Union's score of 306 captured first place in the college division and was only one stroke from the overall low mark. Ragland Jones finished with a sparkling 74 to earn all-state honors as well as conclude as the second lowest scored overall. Steve Simpson and Shea Bromley also made the all-tourney team with impressive scores of 76 and 77, respectively.

As the season wound down for the golf team it was obvious that it had been a fine one. However, the Union players had to be slightly disappointed with their team finish because they were favorites entering tournament play. That fact, though, should not diminish their overall success.

The Nashville Golf and Athletic Club was the site of TCAC Conference Tournament. David Lipscomb took advantage of the familiar surroundings and won, upsetting Union by eleven strokes 633-644.

Bulldogs shot 325 and 319 in the two-day event with the following individual scores (only top four count): Tom Miller — 158, Steve Simpson — 161, Ragland Jones — 164, Shea Bromley — 165, Chris Allison — 169, and Craig Scott — 176. Miller and Simpson garnered all-tournament honors.

In the NAIA District 24 Tournament, Union had to overcome the elements as well as the other golf team. Henry Horton State Park in Chapel Hill, Tennessee, provided the setting which included a down-pour the initial day and windy and cold conditions the second day. Union placed second again by a scant two strokes. Carson-Newman did the honors with a 640-642 result. Shea Bromley finished fourth overall with a 159 total and earned an all-tournament selection. Other Bulldogs contributing to the finish were Tom Miller — 160, Ragland Jones — 161, Chris Allison 162, and Steve Simpson — 167.

An umbrella was almost as necessary as golf clubs since the team played many of their tournaments in inclement weather.

INTRAMURALS

Without a doubt Union's talent is not limited to its school ball teams. Intramural competitions also boast of some very gifted players.

Intramural events give the non-collegiate athlete a chance to participate in the sports aspect of Union. From tennis to the turkey trot, from basketball to bowling, intramurals has an event for everyone. Many of the organizations sponsor participants for each event, and some strong competition emerges as the teams play to prove who is the best.

The photographs on the following pages present some of the intramural action.

Keeping Us In Line

A CADEMICS

Haven't we all said it at one time or another — "College would be great if I didn't have to study!"? Just imagine what Union would be like with out classes and studying ...

Even Dr. Brewer must take a break every once in awhile!

INTRODUCTION . . .

However, the academic aspect of Union keeps us in line. One of Union's chief purposes is to provide us with a superior education. What we learn today prepares us for tomorrow.

At approximately $1800 a semester, tuition is not cheap at Union. We get what we pay for though. In exchange for our money we receive a priceless education from well-educated, Christian teachers in a convenient, fully-furnished academic complex.

We also pay for our education with our time. At a minimum rate of $3.35 an hour, time isn't inexpensive either. Who hasn't spent hours in the library when he would have rather been with his friends or stayed up late studying for that test on which he just had to make an "A"?

No, academics doesn't come cheap at Union, but it does keep us in line. It enables us to develop self-discipline, confidence, wisdom, maturity, and higher standards which will yield greater returns in our future. — Nancy Riddick

Ms. Lynch and Teresa discuss plans for alumni activities.

"Commitment to Faith and Learning" — Dr. Hyran Barefoot began his administration with this motto and has successfully exemplified this during his first full year as president of Union University.

A native of Mantee, Mississippi, Dr. Barefoot was called into the ministry during his youth and has spent the remainder of his life preparing for that calling and serving God in all aspects of the ministry.

In 1957 he joined the faculty of Union University as an Associate Professor of Religion and Greek. Since that time Dr. Barefoot has been widely recognized and honored for his commitment to both rigorous academic standards and solid religious beliefs. Truly a man of God, Hyran Barefoot will continue to lead Union toward higher academic and Christian ideals.

IT'S A STUDENT AFFAIR

The student pacers stole away for a weekend retreat to learn counseling skills, relax and have fun. Those involved included: (L to R) Mrs. Brenda Collins, Jeff Craig, Lisa Thomas, Monica Powers, Duane Murray, Laurin Smith, Cathy Conley, Ron Kwasigroh, Renee Jackson, and Rob Jackson.

Psychodrama is a vital part of learning student counseling skills. The pacers act out real life situations and discuss ideas for solving problems. Jeff Craig and Laurin Smith portray a common problem in our society — alcohol abuse.

The Office of Student Affairs. You know where it is, but do you know what it is?

The Office of Student Affairs. That is the name, but what does it mean? How does it affect you — the student? It's applications to you may not be obvious — may even go unnoticed — but are pivotal, nonetheless.

Whether you are seeking a chapel reduction or seeking career guidance, the staff of the Office of Student Affairs is always on hand to meet your needs. Its convenient location makes it easy for you to seek special support, whether it is general information or specific advice.

A newly established outgrowth of the Office of Student Affairs is the Student Support Center headed by Director Rob Jackson. This new center was established as a result of a growing concern for the student at large. This office (location, yet to be determined) will feature tutorial and counseling services.

Also unique to the new Student Support Center is a group of carefully trained, concerned students. These students, called pacers, have for the past year served in an unusual capacity to support the department of student counseling, headed by Dr. Betty Hopper. They counsel students on a weekly basis under the supervision of Dr. Hopper, Dr. Jim Wooten and Rob Jackson. Many innovative techniques have been employed to yield exciting results in effort to build a more successful student counseling program. Among these are "group meetings" where several students sharing common struggles will meet weekly to discuss difficulties all students face and determine methods for dealing with them.

Another successful program launched by the Student Support Center is "Psychodrama." This term encompasses plays written, directed and performed by the student pacers to be performed in group meetings. The plays are designed to present everyday problems in a fresh way so that alternatives for solving them can be discussed. This program has been successful and will be presented at the annual convention of Southern Baptist Colleges as an idea for an extension of their own student support programs.

These services and others are all extensions of the Office of Student Affairs. They are easily overlooked, but they are available for you.

Support — an action word with a lot of meaning, rooted deeply and offered daily in Union's Office of Student Affairs. — Laurin Smith

WHEN TEACHERS WERE STUDENTS

Dr. Betty Hopper
University attended:
Union University

I remember a number of memorable college events, since I attended Union at the same time as Carroll Griffin, Jim Wooten, Doug Skiles, Richard and Sandy Holloman, Carla Wise, Nancy Ross, Teresa Trull, and several other current Union faculty/staff members. In particular, one event stands out.

During my first day in class at Union, I happened to be seated right behind someone by the name of Carroll Griffin, who was a friend of my brother. As a nervous, frightened transfer student, I didn't quite understand his sense of humor. The teacher asked me a question for which I had absolutely no answer. Carroll jokingly said, "You're not nearly as smart as your brother," and I burst into tears.

Dr. Louise Bentley
University attended:
Bob Jones University

My college days at Bob Jones University (Greenville, SC) were memorable for friends and fun, of course. The best two things to happen to me were: (1) a mind-expanding liberal arts education that gave me a solid foundation for learning in a Christian environment (I double majored in Humanities and English with a French minor) (2) A godly husband to whom I was married on our graduation day, May 30, 1951. I thank God both of these college experiences continue today — better than ever! That's why I am firmly committed to the goal of Union University because I know what a difference a Christian college can make — in every way!

Dr. Howard Newell
University attended:
Southern Illinois University

Because my high school academic experience was so horrible, I had to spend many, many hours studying in order to do well at SIU. My study skills were essentially non-existent especially during my first two years in college. During my first two years at SIU, I lived on-campus in World War II style army barracks. The walls were thin — even thinner after a water fight — but the relationship among people were strong. I learned a great deal — outside the classroom — about how people live and think.

Dr. Clyde Tilley
University attended:
Carson-Newman College

One of the memorable events of my college days at Carson-Newman was the privilege of crowning and kissing the Philomathean Sweetheart as president of the Philomathean Literary Society at our annual banquet. Literary societies were campus equivalents of our fraternities and sororities at Union.

Dr. George Clark
University attended:
Union University

One of the most memorable events of my college days was the collapse of the cafeteria on the old campus of Union University. The basement was being excavated to provide additional space in the building, and adequate supports for the structure had not been put in place. One Sunday afternoon, about one hour after the noon meal, the building collapsed and sank down into the excavated basement. Miraculously, no one was injured because the building had been completely vacated. Later the building was rebuilt and turned into old Summar Library.

THE BOTTOM LINE

C LASSES

Classes ... Freshmen, Sophomore, Junior, and Senior ... Classes are made up of people, and people are the bottom line at Union University ...

INTRODUCTION

... Looking through the halls, you wonder what brought all these students to Union. Not everyone is preparing for the ministry. Not everyone is an athlete. People speak with many different accents and dress different ways.

They don't seem to be as exclusive as they were in high school. Each class is made up of different ages and intellect.

People of different class levels are put together in different courses. You get to know them, and you become friends.

People are the bottom line at Union University. If there were no freshmen, who would be the brunt of all the jokes? If there were no sophomores, who would sympathize with the freshmen? If there were no juniors, who would provide the energy and enthusiasm? If there were no seniors, who would provide the inspiration and leadership? — Nancy Riddick Typical . . . "exhibiting the essential characteristics of a group; conforming to a type." "Typical" is often a dirty word. Stereotypes can be harmful to a group or individual. No one wishes to be discriminated against because he or she is a member of a certain race, class, denomination, etc. . . . However, stereotypes can also be amusing. For instance, have you ever noticed yourself doing something typically "Senior" and had to laugh, especially if you were caught?

In the following pages, the class officers depict what are the common stereotypes for their class. (These are characteristics of a group and not necessarily the individual portraying them.) It is with humor that these were written; therefore, it is with humor that they should be read.

Senior Class Officers

Jana Norton, vice-president; Lance Davis, president; Lisa Harrington, secretary; Mark Dunaway, treasurer

Seniors . . . they have been here four years, and they have got it together (supposedly!) They know exactly what it takes to make the grade, or at least to make it to class. Mark Dunaway, an example of a typical Senior, manages to roll out of bed in time for his 1:00 class. Leaving notebook, textbook, and pen behind, he shows up for class only a few minutes late.

After four years of diligent pursuit of academic excellence, Seniors are ready for the real world (well, most of them!) Lisa Harrington is interviewing for the perfect job to put into practice the skills and abilities she has acquired while in college. Jana Norton chose another option — more school. Not quite tired of studying, she will obtain her Masters. On the other hand, Lance Davis, dressed from head to toe in Union garb typifies the Senior who cannot bear to leave these sacred halls. They are the ones who return year after year, and you think to yourself, "didn't he graduate?"

Life After Graduation

Four College Years. They pave a collegiate runway that sends you flying off into the real world. Vague rumors of this different world drift out from under classroom doors, leave their imprints in your notebooks and build in intensity as you approach your senior year.

Many of last year's seniors have successfully crossed that mysterious line separating academia and the career arena. They work with zeal toward their goals and dreams that are rooted in Union and live to testify that, yes, there is indeed life after graduation.

Tammy Smith's position as a Regional Sales Manager at IFC Nonwovens is far from monotonous. In a given week she may be jetting off to New York to present a product then flying back to her corporate office in Jackson to close an important deal by phone. Tammy graduated in 1988 from Union with a degree in Management and Marketing and Psychology, and from her education experience feels that innovation and cre-activity are perhaps the most vital tools she was able to take with her into her new career.

Pam Vickers, a recent graduate of Union's Nursing program, has also found a life beyond the halls of Union. Employed as a Registered Nurse by Jackson-Madison County General Hospital, she works in the Intensive Care Units to provide specialized care by monitoring cardiac arrhythmias and administering specialized potent drugs. Not only important are the mechanical facets of her duties, but the abstract areas of her job are vital as well. She spends time with the families of her patients, encouraging them psychologically and comforting as she is able to.

Junior Class Officers

Juniors ... they have been here long enough to know the ropes. For Steve Steiner that means waking up five minutes before class, throwing on whatever is not dirty, and grabbing a notebook and pen on the way out of the door. For Tisha Brewer it means she's learned how to survive on a very limited budget — the change she receives after paying her bill.

Junior Melissa Morris has perfected the art of studying. After two years of noisy dorm life, she's managed to learn microbiology and trigonometry accompanied by the radio. She also knows that food is an absolute must when studying. Debbie Schacle, realizing how precious time is and how little of it she has left, pours over class schedules, the college catalogue and rating sheets by Jane Nichols. If you can figure all of this out, getting the degree should be a breeze.

Rod James, treasurer; Beverly Hudson, secretary; Duane Murray, vice-president; Jay McIntosh, president

Sophomores . . . now that they have that embarrassing freshman year behind them, they can assume an image of dignity. This was not too difficult for the already dignified Duane Murray. Reading Newsweek or Time (whether you read it or just look at the pictures) is helpful in capturing an air of sophistication.

Rod James characterizes the freshman who flunked out and must now try to raise his G.P.A. Beverly Hudson, on the other hand, has learned how to get by with the least possible amount of studying. She spends so much time in the Student Activity Center you would think she was majoring in ping pong and pool.

Sophomores like Jay McIntosh still carry their books and notebooks to class, and they arrive ten minutes early. They haven't quite got the hang of it yet.

Freshmen ... they are the target of all the jokes (and sometimes rightfully so) for who hasn't known a freshman like the one portrayed by Bubba Holsinger. He's finally in COLLEGE; he's eager; and it shows. He wears Union shirts, Union caps, and carries Union notebook and pencils. Peter Cosmiano, on the other hand, is anxious but he's not about to let it show. He dresses more like a businessman than a college student and discusses international affairs over coffee.

Joey Logan was everything in high school, and he loves to tell you all about it. He just can't seem to forget the "good ole days."

Chris Blair maintains close ties with his friends from high school (especially the female ones). He checks his mailbox after every class (sometimes twice!), and there is always at least one letter.

Chris Blair, secretary; Joey Logan, vice-president; Bubba Holsinger, treasurer; Peter Cosmiano, president

Phone Bill Blues

The symptoms include shock, speechlessness, depression, and a decreasing checking account balance. The diagnosis — "Phone Bill Blues." You had no idea reaching out and touching someone would cost you so much!

Sure, there was the afternoon you called your best friend because you failed your history test (for the third time). And maybe you did get pretty homesick a few weeks ago and called your mom five times. It didn't seem like two hours when you talked to your boyfriend. How could all this possibly add up to $105.45! Just like the beer advertisements never show the drunken bum lying in the gutter, South Central Bell's tear-jerking commercials fail to show us what happens when the bill comes in.

The cure — At this point, drastic measures must be taken. Take your phone bill, circle the amount, and tape it by the phone. This should remind you to limit your phone calls. If you don't think that will work; then you have no choice but to declare total abstinence! — Susan Watt

Family Ties

Perhaps no one person influences our lives more than a family member. From the friends we choose to the clothes we wear, from the sports we play to how well we do in school, family members exert a great deal of influence. Let's face it! We are all the product of our families.

For some, even the decision to attend Union was a result of the influence of a family member. At Union family ties are strong ones. Within the college

"family" exists several natural families. The financial aid office reports that 44 students receive second family member scholarships. This doesn't include those who fail to apply nor does it account for the third and fourth member attending. It also does not include the family members of alumni or faculty and staff members.

The reasons one chooses to attend the same college as his/her older sibling are many: the Melissa, Stephanie, and Monica take time out of their busy schedule to spend with each other.

family's history with the college, a comfortable feeling of having someone go before you, or maybe just to have a little bit of home nearby. Melissa Powers, a freshman who chose to follow in the footsteps of her older sisters Monica (senior) and Stephanie (sophomore), feels that having two sisters who already attend

Union made the adjustment to college easier. "It gave new meaning to the word 'reputation'. Many people already knew me and knew who I was," she explains.

Her sister Stephanie describes another important benefit. "If you need family, you have it. If you need a friend, you have one." — Susan Watt Christy and Brian Howard find that it's nice to have family nearby.

Sometimes a driver doesn't quite make it "between the lines."

On A Fine Line

Parking at Union can mean driving for hours to find a space, when you have only two minutes to make it to your next class (especially if that class is the one everyone has strategically scheduled for 11:00 for the purposes of sleeping in). Or, the parking place you finally lasso will typically be the one out in the back forty near the baseball field.

These dilemmas are all the more reason for one to reside on campus, yet the number of commuters steadily increase day after day with each new semester. They pour through the gates in robotic fashion, dodge oncoming exiters, and finally manage to secure a tight spot on, over or sometimes even between the lines. — Laurin Smith

THE END OF THE LINE

On May 27, 1989, at 6:00 p.m., the largest class to graduate from Union University made their way to the front lawn. After four years (more or less), the class of 1989 came to "the end of the line," one of the many in their lifetime.

This line represents years of grueling tests, term papers, research projects, and late night study sessions agonizing over notes and textbooks. It symbolized the cumulative efforts of the graduates, their friends and family as well as the faculty, staff, and administration of Union University that brought them to his hallmark in their academic career.

Mr. John Dancy, Union alumna and NBC news correspondent, delivered the commencement address before Dr. Howard Newell presented the graduates to Dr. Barefoot for the conferring of degrees. Two award presentations were reserved for the graduation exercises — Highest Academic Achievement and the Tigrett Award. Due to a tie, five graduates received the Highest Academic Achievement Award: Alan Joiner, Chris Rice, Tammy Lang, Tammy Murphree, and Carilyn Weatherford. Each of these students achieved a perfect 4.0 grade point average. Elizabeth Peek was recognized as the outstanding graduate and awarded the Tigrett Medal.

The end of one line indicates the commencement of another. Many lines of pursuit are now available to these graduates. Regardless of the options they choose, the time spent at Union, the friendships formed, the knowledge gained, and the guidance accepted are certain to create a lasting impact on the lives of the graduates and those they come in contact with.

CLOSING LINES

When Mr. Shuttleworth first approached me with the prospect of being the editor of the 1989 Lest We Forget, my initial reaction was, "No way, I'd have to be a complete idiot to take on such a task, especially my senior year." By the fourth time he asked me, I had softened! Complete idiot or not — I am very glad I accepted his offer. Although many times I thought I would pull my (or somebody else's) hair out, organizing the yearbook has been my greatest learning experience at Union. It has taught me what sitting in a classroom never could.

However, I can by no means take all of the credit for myself. Without the help, advice, guidance, and prayers of a few very special people, this yearbook could never have become a reality. For this reason, I wish to give thanks to:

Mr. Shuttleworth — who, by the way he jokingly said "no" every time I asked for his assistance, I knew would do whatever he possibly could to help. Laurin Smith — who, in spite of her extremely busy schedule, was an outstanding assistant. Most of the layouts are a wonderful product of her creativity.

Anita Worley — who came in during the middle when things (myself included) were a mess. She lifted the load immensely. I knew I had been doing the work of two people! Steve Shuttleworth — Without the countless hours he spent in the darkroom, this book would have been an impossibility, or I would have been a maniac!

Johnny Cole — our Josten's sales representative. Everyone needs someone like Johnny to answer all their questions and put them at ease.

Adrienne Feltus and Pam Vickers — my roommates, who although they knew the inevitable answer to the question, "What did you do today?", continued to ask anyway.

My wonderful parents, brother, and sister — Their love and support have always been unwavering.

Finally, to the one to whom all thanks and praise must always go: Jesus Christ. I am continually reminded that without Him I am nothing and all my efforts are in vain.

On behalf of the 1988-89 Lest We Forget staff, I hope that this yearbook will bring back many wonderful memories of 1988-89 and that looking through its pages will bring you pleasure for many years to come.
